

Almeida Nogueira, Mariana
VISÃO

Mariana Almeida Nogueira is a reporter who covers social issues, health, science, and technology for VISÃO, the most read news magazine in Portugal, where she also contributes with features to the cultural section of the magazine and to the bimonthly vertical VISÃO Saúde (exclusively dedicated to Health).

For the past two years, Mariana extensively covered the COVID-19 pandemic crisis, writing not only about the disease itself but also about the social, economic, and political issues that it has raised. Through hundreds of articles, Mariana showed not only the evolution of COVID but also what was and was not being done nationally and worldwide about this Public Health crisis.

Mariana's reporting on the non-Covid patients' problem (and collateral deaths) won the Liga Portuguesa Contra o Cancro and AstraZeneca Journalism Award in 2021.

Mariana believes journalism is more than just reporting; it's about listening to people, especially the ones that devote their lives to thinking about how to make the world work in a better way. Erik Orsenna, Martin Rees, António Damásio or Avi Loeb are just some of the economists, philosophers, doctors, and scientists that Mariana has interviewed in the past years.
