Bengoa, Rafael
The Institute for Health and Strategy (SI-Health)

Dr. Rafael Bengoa is an expert in management and public health and a strong advocate of universal public health. Considered one of the fathers of Osakidetza (Basque Health Service), he has forged a path within the public health landscape.

Alongside Patricia Arratibel, he is presently the co-director of The Institute for Health & Strategy in Bilbao, Spain.
Previously, Dr. Bengoa acted as the Minister of Health of the IX legislature of the Basque Government, was Vice Chairman of Advisory Group Horizon 20/20 of the UE and was Director of Health Systems in WHO-HQ until 2006.

Presently, he advises on policy level reforms to Government. More recently he has led the expert panel for Northern Ireland (Systems, Not Structures) and participated as expert in the Scottish Digital and Health panel.

He is Senior Leadership Fellow at Harvard University and teaches in several business schools.
