

Jervelund, Christian
Copenhagen Economics

Christian believes that partnerships spanning the healthcare and life sciences ecosystem are key to unlocking value for patients going forward, and at present he is actively involved in helping companies and industry organisations to design and implement successful partnerships.

Christian has expertise within the design of IP protection and incentives, in particular within OMPs, where he combines this knowledge with deep insights into the OMP development process and partnerships to re-imagine the future of OMP development.