EUROPEAN HEALTH FORUM
GASTEIN

Čič, Katja
Slovenian National Institute of Public Health

Katja Čič currently works as a Project Associate at the Slovenian National Institute of Public Health where she is part of the service for NGOs, supporting social participation efforts in Slovenia and coordinating the international Joint Action PreventNCD Youth Advisory Group.

She serves on the WHO Youth Council where she chairs the Working Group on Planetary Health, and acts as the co-coordinator of the WHO Europe's EHP Partnership on Youth.

Katja Čič is also a certified soft skills trainer with Medical Trainers and has previously worked as the Programme Director for the International Youth Health Organization, Expert Associate at the Slovenian NCD Alliance, Public Health Director and Liaison Officer to the WHO in the International Federation of Medical Students' Associations (IFMSA), as well as a consultant to DTH-Lab and to WHO Europe on youth engagement in the field of immunization, and as a youth researcher on climate change and health.