Anniek de Ruijter is Professor of Health Law and Policy at the University of Amsterdam and Director of the research group on Law for Health and Life. Her research focuses on the legal and constitutional foundations of health protection, particularly in the context of the European Union and global governance. She combines legal analysis with interdisciplinary collaborations in public health, biomedical sciences and social sciences.

She currently leads major research initiatives, including the ELSA Lab on AI for Health Equity (funded by the Dutch Research Council). Her work has been recognized with a personal NWO Research Excellence Grant, and she has contributed to international projects on pandemic preparedness and vaccine access.

De Ruijter is a Chair of the Academic Council of the Amsterdam Institute for Global Health and Development, Member of the Board of the Gastein Forum and co-initiator of the European Health Union Manifesto.
