

Sienkiewicz, Dorota

EuroHealthNet

Dorota Sienkiewicz is a public health advocate with a strong interest in health equity, poverty and social exclusion, and the prevention of NCDs via systems-thinking and lifecourse approaches. At EuroHealthNet, Dorota manages and leads its Policy Platform, providing strategic policy advice and intelligence to the Partnership, developing input to and liaising with EU institutions, its strategic and expert groups, and EU public health and social rights stakeholders. Before joining EuroHealthNet, Dorota worked for a number of European civil society organisations in the field of public health and international development, as independent consultant for health and social justice NGOs as well as the WHO Europe Governance for Health and European Healthy Cities Network. She has been involved in several EU-funded projects (JA CHRODIS+ & Best-ReMaP, ESIF Funds for Health) and lectured on European public health at the University of Liverpool. She holds Master's degrees in behavioural sciences and social psychology, and in international public health.
