Elborn, Joseph
European Health Parliament

Joe nearly became a psychologist, but instead of focusing on abnormal psychology he wanted to understand how ‘normal’ humans thought and behaved. This led him to spend several years in Australia in the health insurance industry, write 2 books and is now teaching an MBA in Brussels alongside working as a political consultant at a small specialist firm focused on healthcare. In Aug 2017 he was elected to represent young healthcare professionals across Europe as the President of the European Health Parliament, who he will be representing at Gastein 2018.
