

Fagan, Lucy

UN Major Group for Children and Youth

Lucy Fagan is a trainee public health physician and a committed youth advocate. By day she works in the NHS, and is currently supporting some of the UK's hardest-hit communities to respond and recover from the COVID-19 pandemic.

She is also a founding member of Young Experts: Tech 4 Health (YE:T4H) - a dynamic new platform harnessing the power of young people and technology to drive a more equitable, healthier world. Lucy is passionate about rights-based, people-centred approaches to technology and is particularly interested in how the digital world is shaping the health, rights and relationships of the next generation.
