

Guldemond, Nick

Leiden University Medical Center / World Organisation of Family Doctors / Medical University of Gdansk & Sechenov

Dr. Guldemond has a background in electric engineering and medicine. He is a key expert on eHealth and integrated care for various international organisations such as WHO Global eHealth Observatory, EU Programmes as European Close initiative on Healthy and Active Ageing, Knowledge Innovation Community (KIC) Health and KIC Digital, Ambient Assisted Living, Innovative Medicine Initiative and Innovative Medical Device Initiative.

He is advisor on eHealth and healthcare transformation for various national/regional eHealth institutes NHS UK, NHS Scotland, Norway, China, Poland, Germany, Belgium as well as multinational companies in Pharma, Medtech, health IT and finance. On behalf of the Netherlands Federation of University Medical Centres (NFU) Dr. Guldemond was architect of the national eHealth implementation agenda and health track leader of the big data alliance.