

Hamilton, Clayton

WHO Regional Office for Europe

Mr Clayton Hamilton leads the WHO Regional Office for Europe's Initiative for Digitalization of Health Systems, providing support and guidance to digital innovation in health systems strengthening and capacity-building for public health services in the Region's 53 Member States.

With a background in ICT development and business management, and over 21 years of experience working in the field of public health, Mr Hamilton leads strategic activities for innovation in Europe by providing support to countries in their development and implementation of national digital health programmes and through partnerships with major international stakeholders working to increase the impact and innovation of public health services in the region.