

Hutchings, Adam

Dolon

Adam Hutchings is the Managing Director of Dolon. A health economist by training, he has over 20 years' market access experience in consulting and the pharmaceutical industry, including roles at Aventis, GlaxoSmithKline and Baxter Healthcare. He is an expert in healthcare policy relating to pricing, reimbursement, and patient access to orphan medicines.

Dolon is a consultancy that specialises in market access for rare disease medicines. Dolon partners with and provides incisive strategic guidance to multinational pharmaceutical companies on a variety of market access and policy issues globally. Our goal is to ensure that effective rare disease treatments are made accessible to the patients who need them, in a way that is sustainable for both the pharmaceutical industry and society.