

Koeck, Jean-Louis

Mesvaccins.net

Jean-Louis KOECK is a medical doctor, professor in microbiology and epidemiology at the “Ecole du Val-de-Grâce” in Paris and Associate Professor at the University of Bordeaux. He works currently as a vaccinology expert for the French military health service. He has built an experience on the diagnosis of tropical diseases and has been working several years in Africa. Among fields of research are the molecular diagnosis of infectious diseases, genetic diversity assessment of bacteria and vaccinology. He coordinates the International French Course of Vaccinology and founded the web platform MesVaccins.net, which includes a smart electronic immunisation record for people empowerment and health professional decision-making.

(last updated 29.09.2017)