EUROPEAN HEALTH FORUM
GASTEIN

Lafranconi, Alessandra

Lafranconi Alessandra is a specialized Physician in Hygiene and Preventive Medicine, University of Milan-Bicocca (2017). After graduating from Medical School (University of Milan-Bicocca, 2010), she obtained a M.Sc. degree in Environmental Health (Cyprus International Institute, Harvard T. Chan School of Public Health, 2011).

She is now a grant-holder at the Centre for Public Health, at the University of Milan-Bicocca, where she holds a Jean Monnet Professorship and she teaches several public health courses; her main research interests focus on health and air pollution, nutrition and food systems.

In the last five years, she had temporary collaborations with the World Health Organization, the Joint Research Centre of the European Commission, the Regional Government of Lombardy, and other governmental bodies, in the field of food, nutrition and environmental health.

(last updated 25.09.2017)