Alabi, Margaret Adesola
Regeneron Pharmaceuticals

Margaret Alabi leads U.S. and global patient advocacy for dermatology at Regeneron, working to ensure that the experiences and priorities of people living with serious immune-mediated conditions shape how medicines are developed, studied and made accessible. Her career spans more than 15 years in the pharmaceutical industry across commercial, medical affairs and patient advocacy, consistently centred on patient partnership, health equity, inclusive innovation, and the lived experience of patients. She holds a PharmD from Xavier University of Louisiana and an MBA from the Yale School of Management.
