Novartis

In September 2019, I joined the European Public Affairs team at Novartis. In my current role based in Brussels, I am mainly responsible for coordinating the Novartis activities at the European Parliament as well as supporting the current EuropaBio Chairmanship held by Novartis. Within my team, I am also leading on topics, such as environmental sustainability, value-based pricing as well as R&D and public-private-partnerships. Before joining Novartis, I worked for the Swiss government, first at the Secretariat for Economic Affairs and then at the Swiss Embassy in Mexico City. My university background is in international affairs and governance, and I very much enjoy working in healthcare as it touches each and everyone of us, and I hope to contribute as much as I can for patients to get access to medicines.
