

Papageorgiou, Labrini

Roche

Labrini is currently leading the Roche Global Policy strategies in the fields of Vision Health, Rare Diseases and Gene Therapies. Inspired to pursue a career that would allow her to engage with both the scientific and business aspects of promoting health, she joined Roche in 2013 and undertook various roles in access, health policy and economics. She has been working in close partnership with healthcare ecosystem stakeholders across the globe to develop evidence-based, integrated policy solutions that improve systems performance and maximize value for communities.
