

Popa, Florin

European Commission

Florin Popa is policy officer in the European Commission's Structural Reform Support Service (SRSS). He is involved in the design, preparation and monitoring of the implementation of technical support projects in the areas of healthcare and social assistance. This requires close dialogue with Member States on the identification of reform priorities, needs for assistance and suitable providers of expertise, and on the progress of support activities on the ground. Florin Popa's past professional experience includes support to policy design and strategic planning in education, health and social assistance, implementation of European Structural and Investment Funds (DG Regional Policy, European Commission) and research on social, economic and ecological sustainability (Université Catholique de Louvain, Louvain-la-Neuve).
